DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 09/22/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues "Schein discloses selecting a program from a display listing and displaying a preview of the selected program in a preview window and displaying the selected program in a program area" (page 13-14 lines 26-2). Examiner agrees that Schein shows a preview window for displaying the selected program but asserts the program window is for displaying the currently tuned program (page 12 section 0133). This currently tuned program relates to the last viewed program by the user and not to program selected on the listing guide. The program on the listing guide is referred to as "the show that is currently being highlighted in show matrix 506" (page 12 section 0133).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 3 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 3 recites the limitation "the third area of screen". There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim. Claim 5 is dependent upon Claim 3.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following claim rejections are based on the Examiner's best understanding in light of the above 35 U.S.C. 112 2nd paragraph rejection.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-4, 6-8, 10-17, 19-21, 23-30, and 32-34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Schein et al.

Regarding Claim 1, Schein shows a method for navigating about an on screen television interactive program guide (see fig. 16a). Schein further shows displaying a list of television programs in a first area of a screen (see fig. 16a item 506), displaying a first television program in a second area of the screen (see fig. 16a item 526), activating a display function (equating to activating the listing and moving cursor down list, page 12 section 0133), and maintaining display of the first television program in the second area of the screen responsive to a first state of the activated display function (page 12 section 0133, see fig. 16a item 526).

Regarding Claim 2, Schein shows an icon (fig. 16a, item 512) that indicates the user is in the program guide display.

Regarding Claim 3, Schein shows an icon (fig. 16a, item 512) that indicates the user is in the program guide display. This icon is overlaid in a third portion of the screen.

Regarding Claim 4, Schein further shows receiving a first user command invoking a full screen television mode from the on screen guide (page 12 section 0137, see fig. 17a-c), displaying a full screen television program in response to the first user command (page 12 sections 0131-0133, 0136-0137), receiving a second user command invoking a grid guide mode (page 12 section 0137, see fig. 17a-c), returning to the on screen program guide (page 12 section 0137), and redisplaying the first television program in the third area of the screen (page 12 section 0122, see figure 16a).

Regarding Claim 6, Schein shows that user activates the display function with a remote control (page 12 section 0131, see fig. 1).

Regarding Claim 7, Schein shows that the list of television programs in the first area is maintained (page 12 section 0133, see fig. 16a).

Regarding Claim 8, Schein shows displaying an interactive advertisement in a third area of the screen and selecting the advertisement to active an ad function (page 11 sections 0127-0128, page 12 sections 0134-0135).

Regarding Claim 10, Schein further shows being able to connect to the Internet to show images or data in the second area of the screen (page 10 section 0117, page 11 sections 0124-0125, page 12 sections 0133-0137, page 13 sections 0140-0141, see figure 21c).

Art Unit: 2611

Regarding Claim 11, Schein further shows establishing a link to an internet website for display of images or video in a fourth area of the screen (see figure 21c 'official NFL cap' area).

Regarding Claim 12, Schein shows the ability to collect user profile data and change the EPG accordingly (page 11 section 0122).

Regarding Claim 13, Schein shows that the profile data includes viewer interaction with the program guide (page 11 section 0122).

Regarding Claim 14, Schein shows an interactive television system with a tuner for receiving a television program, memory for storing multiple types of data, and a display monitor coupled to the tuner and memory (page 2 section 0029, page 3 sections 0036-0037, page 4 sections 0040, 0050, page 5 sections 0054-0059). All other limitations of the Claim have been discussed with regards to the method claims of Claim 1.

Regarding Claims 15-17, 19-21, and 23-26, the system claims have been discussed with regards to the method Claims of Claims 2-4, 6-8, and 10-13, respectively.

Regarding Claim 27, all limitations of the claim have been discussed with regards to Claim 1.

Regarding Claim 28, all limitations of the claim have been discussed with regards to Claim 2.

Regarding Claim 29, all limitations of the claim have been discussed with regards to Claim 3.

Regarding Claim 30, all limitations of the claim have been discussed with regards to Claim 4.

Regarding Claim 32, all limitations of the claim have been discussed with regards to Claim 6.

Regarding Claim 33, Schein shows using an icon to activate the display function (see fig. 16a item 512).

Regarding claim 34, Schein shows that the display list of programs in the first area of the screen maintains after the display function is invoked (see fig. 16a).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 5, 9, 18, 22, and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Schein et al.

Regarding Claim 5, Schein fails to show a locked lock and an unlocked lock to indicate the display state. Official Notice is given that it is well-known and expected in the art to use locks, as well as a wide variety of icons, to indicate display states.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Schein with the lock icons so that the state of the display would be graphically represented in a way such that the user would easily be aware of the current operating conditions of the display.

Regarding Claim 9, Schein shows the ability to record a future television show from the program guide (page 9 section 0109). Schein also shows the ability to advertise a future television program (page 12 section 133-134). Schein also shows the ability to perform a function on the displayed advertisement as discussed above. Schein fails to show that performing the direct function on the advertisement would mark it for recording. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Schein with the ability to mark a future advertisement for recording so that the user could automatically set a desired program for recording instead of searching through the program guide.

Regarding Claim 18 and 31, all limitations of the claim have been discussed with regards to Claim 5.

Regarding Claim 22, all limitations of the claim have been discussed with regards to Claim 9.
